We understand that payment must be made to the private teacher directly. Some teachers charge by the month, others lesson to lesson. Each teacher is required to give you their policies in writing. It is most likely that you will be required to obtain some additional music for private lessons. Teachers are instructed to keep the cost as low as possible.

Practicing is a very important component of private lessons. The private lesson is NOT to be used as a practice session for band music. Parents should help their child establish a regular practice routine at home in a room free from distractions.

Private teachers can't afford to teach for free and they can't afford to be here when students are absent or aren't prepared for their lesson. Each teacher has their own cancellation payment policy, but in general the following rules of courtesy apply:

Please notify the private teacher immediately when you know your child will not be there for the lesson (this includes illness, appointments, field trips, etc...). If teachers have time to rearrange their schedule they are more apt to not charge for a missed lesson and or to schedule a makeup lesson. Parents please make sure to obtain the home, cell numbers, and the email for your child's private teacher.

We ask all teachers to communicate via letter, email, or phone to each parent every nine weeks. Parents please communicate any concerns you have with the private teacher. If they can't be resolved then please communicate them to one of the directors.

All private teachers will contact you prior to the 1st lesson for your child.
